

Support with complex cases Cymorth ag achosion cymhleth

Reconstruct Wales provides a range of services to help practitioners working with children and families whose cases are complex. Through specialised training and direct work our experienced staff can help you to promote and enhance evidence based assessment and intervention in complex cases. The work includes pre-Public Law Outline (PLO) assessments, risk assessment in relation to children displaying sexually harmful behaviour and community based assessments.

We will achieve this with you through:

Bespoke assessments designed to meet the requirements of the PLO; specialist risk assessments in cases where there are concerns regarding sexually harmful behaviour and parenting and kinship assessment.

Consultancy aimed at developing the practitioner's knowledge base, enhancing existing skills and supporting practitioners in evidence based practice. This is offered through coaching, mentoring or modelling.

Specialist training to meet identified needs to develop practice within specific areas such as specialist risk assessment skills, court work, identifying and evidencing change and collaborative practice.

Our staff who carry out this work have extensive experience in social work practice, management and training, child protection, parenting and risk assessments and working with young people with complex problems.
